

If you want to know what inflation is I'll tell you. Yesterday a lady lay out on the sidewalk in the view of the crowd hurrying to her cafe window, and none stopped to pick it up—none, that is, but an old man paused, bent over and retrieved it. That's inflation.

Now about Britain's stolen Stone Scone—they've found it, although at reports were they feared it was a phony. That is, it had Scotland Yard between a hard place and rock.

Payetteville is all torn up over enforcement of an old ordinance that forbids dogs from running at large, whether vaccinated and licensed or not. Good night! Pretty soon a dog won't have any more rights than a man.

Now it's different with our roaming dogs around Hope. They lead good life. Maybe it's because they never went to a college town.

But I do hear complaints from schoolchildren. One couple just set up in their first house report at night marauders turn over the garbage can regularly before daylight.

And the dogs complain too. Mine says they have to watch the others charge the garbage can—from the wrong side of the fence.

Speaking of ingenuity, the next time you have either an Arkansas Gazette or a Texarkana Gazette take note how they have shrunk their page so that it is an inch wider than ours. Standard for of us is type 16 1/2 inches wide, and the large papers are coming on a 16 1/2-inch sheet, and since the question arises how do you put 16 1/2 inches of type on a 16-inch sheet and still maintain reasonable white-space margins?

The explanation is this (after a little with George W. Hosmer, Star's mechanical superintendent): Papers in towns the size of Little Rock and Texarkana don't print directly from type. The metal types are matted whole, then cast in curved metal plates for high-speed presses. This we all know, there's always been some inkage in the process. But here's the gimmick: New page mats have been developed with an extremely fine shrinkage. Using these new mats the large newspapers can put inches of original type on a 16-inch sheet and still have room over for margins.

Every publisher large or small knows the answer to that one: spirit is in short supply, and government wants 5 per cent of all contracts this year. The Little Rock and Texarkana papers shrinking 17 1/2 inches to a 16 1/2 sheet have saved 5.7 per cent newspaper—an eye-catch more in the government is going to. Which makes sense.

State-Wide Scandal in Tax-Dodging

Little Rock, April 11 — New or higher tax levies would be an ironical blow against Arkansas citizens who are paying their fair and just share at a time when tax-dodging has reached an all-time high in the state.

According to a recent survey of the county tax books by the Arkansas Public Expenditure Council, improvement in the administration of existing laws would provide adequate funds for each district to operate standard schools for nine-month terms even at the currently low assessment rates. The need for an immediate return to principles of common honesty, decency and fair play in complying with present tax laws is clearly revealed by the study made of county tax rolls.

John A. Rudisill, executive vice-president of the APEC, said: "I am convinced that the time has come for all taxpayers who are making an honest effort to comply with our present tax laws to unite in an all-out drive to force the chiselers to get their property on the tax books before allowing any new taxes to be heaped upon the people of Arkansas." Senator William Fulbright, who has introduced legislation in a recent speech to Congress when he asked, "Is it too much to ask that we behave with simple honesty, with that honesty which looks, not to the letter of the law, but to its spirit?"

Democratization of property tax administration is the principal reason the schools are having to rely on public donations in general.

Some People Feel That What This Country Needs Is a Good Five-Cent Psychiatrist

By HAL YORK
New York, (AP) Some people feel that what this country needs is a good five-cent psychiatrist. My conviction is, however, that what it needs most is a way to enable its citizens to get eight to nine hours of sleep every night. Then it wouldn't need half so many psychiatrists.

Right now a lot of people who seek the psychiatric couch aren't really so mentally upset as they are sleepy. They aren't looking for someone to tell their troubles to so much as they are looking for a place to lie down and rest.

The only two places left in America where a citizen can catch a nap in the daytime to make up for the sleep he should have gotten the night before are barber chairs and psychiatric couches. And the latter is a man gets in either rare enough to give Rip Van Winkle insomnia.

Medical science agrees that the average red-blooded American goes to bed at 10 p.m. and wakes up at 6 a.m. and requires eight to nine hours of sleep a night if he really wants to get up and get going. But how can this be done in modern civilization?

The trouble is that adults are acting more and more like children. They want to stay up beyond their bedtime. Why? It only makes them cross and cranky and frustrated like children who have missed a nap. What good does it do to stay up late? Whoever said anything interesting or clever after midnight? If he didn't, it won't be lost to the world for lack of sleep. He'll say it again the next morning.

Petition Denied to Move Nashville Auction Barn

Nashville, Ark., April 13 — The Howard County Chancery Court yesterday denied a petition which had been filed in that court seeking to condemn the Nashville Auction Sales Barn as a nuisance.

The action followed a lengthy trial which began last Monday. Over seventy witnesses testified during the hearing. Judge James H. Pilkinton of Hope presided throughout the trial.

In the decision handed down from the bench at the conclusion of the trial the judge stated that it was unfortunate that the barn had been constructed within the city limits in the first instance, but that since it was there it could only be abated for legal causes.

He then stated that the testimony did not, in his opinion, meet the requirements set out by law which would justify the court in condemning the barn at this time.

Two Nashville doctors, and a representative of the State Health Department, all had testified that the barn was presently kept in a clean sanitary condition and was built with a cement floor easily cleaned after each sale.

The suit had been filed by property owners near the present location of the auction barn.

Reinforced Reds Halt UN Kumhwa Push; 3 Red Planes Shot Down

Screen Writer Called Before Committee

Washington, April 13 — (AP) — The house un-American activities committee today called Screen Writer Paul Jarrico for questioning about an alleged attempt to prevent another witness from informing on fellow Communists in Hollywood.

Jarrico was charged yesterday by Richard Collins, 36-year-old film writer, with making a dramatic plea not to be a "stool pigeon" when testifying in the committee's current probe of communism in the movie capital.

Collins said he refuses such assurance when Jarrico would not promise — in return — not to support Soviet Russia in the event of war with the United States.

Jarrico and Walter Waldo Salt were the principal witnesses scheduled for today's committee session. The urbane Collins gave the committee a chapter-and-verse account of his 10 years as a Communist in Hollywood from 1939 to 1948.

In the course of a full day in the witness chair, he identified at least 25 film personalities as members of the Communist party at one time or another during his own party career.

Among them were Producer Robert Rossen, who he thought had been "disaffiliated" since 1947; Ring Lardner, Jr.; Author Bud Schulberg; Writer John Howard Lawson said by Collins to have been the "accepted leader" of the Communist movement in Hollywood; Writer Leonardo Barcovali; Salt and Jarrico.

Rossen was the producer of the 1949 academy award picture, "All The Kings Men." He is reported to have just completed "The Brave Bulls" in Mexico. Another of his pictures is "A Walk in the Sun."

Collins said Schulberg, author of "What Makes Sammy Run" and more recently "The Disenchanted," or "perhaps" Lardner — was instrumental in his joining the Communist movement in 1938.

He quit in 1948, he testified, because of an unwillingness to be "regarded as a friend of Russia when actually Russia was an enemy."

He testified that after nearly 10 years in the party, he also found he "could not buy" the frequent switches in the Communist party line.

Your Chamber of Commerce in Action

A group of merchants who sell wearing apparel met in the Chamber of Commerce office Tuesday afternoon to discuss various spring promotion programs. Details are being worked out and the programs will be announced shortly. Among the promotions discussed were style show, observation of cotton week and straw hat day.

60 Farm, Business Leaders Make Annual Pasture Tour View Latest Practices

Despite unfavorable weather conditions, approximately 60 business men, farmers, and agricultural leaders of Hope and Memphis counties made the annual pasture tour conducted by the local Farm Home Administration and the Soil Conservation Service.

The purpose of the tour this year was to observe and study the re-seeding of eroded slopes, the use of heavy and light application of commercial fertilizer, the requisites of a Grade A dairy barn, and the type cattle that make up a good, practical dairy herd.

Having left the court house at 10 a. m., the group visited the farms of Jesse Brown, Johnnie Thompson, and Lester Gordon. At the Brown farm the group studied re-seeding eroded slopes, observing the effective use of a white and early spring pasture crop.

Mr. Brown showed the visitors the effective use of a white and early spring pasture crop. The Brown farm also had a pasture plot which demonstrated the effectiveness of the Tokyo, Satray, April 14 — (UP) — Chinese Communist troops heavily reinforced their troops in Korea Friday and halted a United Nations drive in the mountain approaches to the Red stronghold of Kumhwa.

Bitter fighting awayed in the heights along both sides of the highway leading from Seoul to Kumhwa, supply center of Red forces massed on the central front.

But 10 miles west, on the highway straight north from Seoul, the Reds abandoned the major town of Yonchon, 35 miles north of Seoul and seven miles north of the 38th parallel.

American tanks rolled into Yonchon, found the city deserted, and returned to their own lines in the afternoon.

Intelligence officers said two new Chinese Communist army groups numbering 100,000 to 180,000 men at full strength have been observed moving into positions south of the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Front line reports said it was apparent the Chinese on the west central front have received replacements for heavy losses suffered in weeks of steady fighting.

Front line Chinese divisions in this area now are near peak strength, and their morale is high, front reports said. Fewer prisoners have been taken in the past few days than at any time since the 8th army went on the offensive in January.

Allied warplanes flew more than 600 sorties during the day, 200 in close support on attacking infantry.

Allied guns killed or wounded an estimated 1,170 Reds in one bombardment alone yesterday south of the Hwachon reservoir.

Enemy casualties along the whole front totaled 2,460 yesterday — more than twice as many as reported the previous day.

The air war also reached a new pitch yesterday. Thirty-three Communist MIG-15 jets were shot down or damaged by American planes in the greatest day of aerial battles since World War II.

More than 227 aircraft — 115 American jets 32 B-29 superfortresses and at least 80 enemy jets — were engaged in the first of the day's two major battles over northwest Korea.

Administration Willing to Hear General's Side

Washington, April 13 — Administration leaders were reported today to be willing to hear the side of General Douglas MacArthur to the controversy over his removal from command in the Far East.

They apparently were planning, however, that the Pacific commander submit a statement before the committee on his policy views but on his side in the Korean fighting.

MacArthur's removal from command was reported to have been a long time in the making and the president of Remington-Rand, Inc., reported that the ousted general had become an executive with the firm.

Senator McFarland of Alaska, the Democratic leader, said the final decision on giving MacArthur a congressional hearing had been made. He said he had told to house speaker Rayburn of Texas about the matter and to confer with him again.

MacArthur and his family were to leave Tokyo Monday by plane for San Francisco. They will overnight in Hawaii. A top aide of the general has said MacArthur is willing to appear before the senate.

Senate Republicans appeared to be in a minority position.

Gunmen Take $35,000 in Payroll Holdup

Newburyport, Mass., April 13 — (AP) — Five gunmen, wearing bandanas over their faces, seized a $35,000 payroll at the nation's largest steel mill yesterday.

The holdup took place at the Bethlehem Steel Corp. mill in Newburyport. The gunmen, who were armed with shotguns and pistols, forced the payroll clerk to hand over the money.

The payroll was for the month of March and was worth $35,000. The gunmen took the money and fled in several cars.

The FBI is now searching for the gunmen. It is believed that the holdup was part of a larger scheme to raise money for the Irish Republican Army.

Says Tamperer Wanted Deed Discovered

Little Rock, April 13 — (AP) — An Arkansas house committee yesterday heard a house officer say he believed after a lion of a house record had been done in hopes that the tampering would be discovered.

Chief Clerk Glad McCallain said doctoring of the house journal to show an emergency clause on the "liberalized" state purchasing law had been approved when actually it had been rejected was a "crude" job.

"I think it was done for the purpose of being found," McCallain told the house journal committee. "Then the journal committee would have to say it (the vote) had been tampered with and any person would want to sign a referendum petition (for a popular vote on the act) after that."

The change in the vote record was discovered a few days after the regular 1951 legislative adjourned MARCH. An effort had been started to refer the measure to a popular vote by petition, a process which is complicated by an emergency clause. The clause makes a law effective immediately upon being signed by the governor.

Attorney General Ike Murry, who conducted the questioning for the committee, drew from McCallain a statement that he didn't originally tell the Pulaski county grand jury (which made an investigation but sent the matter back to the house) about one detail.

This was that Mrs. McCallain, his assistant, and hence Virgil Tennant Arms Arch Tipton had gone into the locked room where the journal was kept to examine it after learning there might be something amiss.

McCallain said he wasn't asked a direct question about the visit, but agreed with Murry he'd been asked if he could furnish any information to "help with the investigation."

Mrs. McCallain, who testified to an agreement with Tipton not to mention the visit to the journal room unless asked specifically, said she didn't find the journal manuscript she wanted to examine.

Tipton also testified to the agreement, but said he told the grand jury anyway.

McCallain said he first learned there might be something irregular with the bill (now act 242 of 1951) in a telephone call from John F. Wells, Little Rock publisher. Wells was a leader in the move to refer the new law to popular vote.

But Wells said he'd learned of the matter in a call from "someone" in the secretary of state's office, who said Mrs. McCallain was investigating a reported irregularity in the bill.

There was some other seeming confusion about who first reported what to whom.

Secretary of State C. G. Hall testified he had told Governor McMath of rumors of irregularities and McMath had replied he knew nothing of them.

The committee didn't decide on date for another hearing, but recessed subject to Chairman Jack Clark's call.

DOROTHY DIX

Mail-Order Wife

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a young unmarried man. My work is peevish for ore and developing mines, and it does not give me much opportunity to meet girls. Recently I read in a magazine of a correspondence club and I wrote for information. They sent me literature with descriptions of some of the lady members, which is very interesting. Do you think members exaggerate themselves, and do marriages of that kind turn out successfully? The things I look for in a girl are good character, good nature, good health and a good education. I should also want a girl to have the same tastes that I have. Do you think I am asking too much? I can support a wife and I know I would treat one well, but my chief fault is that I am restless and do not stick to a thing till I put it through. In that way I often lose where I should win. But I think if I had the right kind of a wife I would settle down and be better off.

A MINER
Answer: Perhaps a "mail-order" wife might give satisfaction, but the chances are a million to one against it. Buying a pig in a poke is a sure thing compared to marrying a woman sight unseen, and only the foolhardy would risk it.

Marriage is the most personal thing on earth and picking out a husband or wife is a chore that nobody can do for you. For whether a man and woman are happy together or not depends altogether upon whether they suit each other, not upon what they are. Anyway, there are risks enough in marrying even when you have known a girl from her cradle up, without taking any chances on a lady who was driven to advertising for a husband.

They Exaggerate Charms
Of course, the women who are husband-hunting exaggerate their charms. Naturally they put their best foot foremost. That is merely good salesmanship and you can't blame them for that. But if you are wise, you will discount their age and their beauty and their money by at least fifty per cent.

The qualities you demand in the girl you marry are sensible and well considered and you should have no difficulty in meeting one who comes up to specifications when you come out of your mountains and down into the places where girls abound. But don't marry any girl under the delusion that she will change your nature and cure your wandering foot. Wives are no miracle-workers and after a man is married his nature is even as it was before.

Look over the girls yourself before you pick out one to spend the balance of your life with. Marriage lasts a long, long time and it seems longer if you get the wrong one.

Dear Miss Dix: How much should one sacrifice for one's family? How much should one let one's family influence one about marriage?

CECIL
Answer: Not much, I think. Self sacrifice is one of the virtues that lean to vice's side and it more often does harm than good. Especially is this the case where one son or daughter is elected the family goal and offered up on the family altar, thereby encouraging and promoting selfishness, laziness and parasitism in the remainder of the family.

We have all seen this happen a thousand times. We have seen the oldest son in a family taken out of school and put to work to help support the family while he was still a mere child. We have seen him denied an education that the other children might go to college. We have seen him give up all thoughts of marriage because he had to help take care of the wives and children of the brothers and sisters who were too shiftless to support their own.

We have seen a young girl made a slave to a marriage and mother and father both ruined by it.

happy or follow a career because they didn't want her to leave them and nobody could tell an egg just to suit them except her. And we have seen how futile were the sacrifices made of their lives.

And we have known how much better and finer and stronger men and women the younger brothers and sisters would have been if they had been forced to bear their part of the family burden.

When one is picking out a husband or wife, one's own heart and judgment should determine the matter, not the prejudices of one's family. Husbands and wives are a matter of taste. Those who are going to have to live with them are the only ones who have any right to a say-so about them.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been going with a girl who is good-looking and a good dancer, but I have grown tired of her. I have not the heart to tell her this and do not want to cause any hard feelings between us, so I will be greatly obliged if you will give me any suggestions by which I can get my liberty in a pleasant way.

DOUGLAS
Answer: There isn't any pleasant way.

Ginger Rogers Recalls Dance Queen Reign

With the Charleston very much in evidence these days, Ginger Rogers finds herself doing a great deal of reminiscing.

It was the Charleston that launched the meteoric career of Virginia Katherine McMath, who was to become a member of the team of Rogers and Astaire, known around the world as the greatest dance combination in filmland history.

Ginger, now starring with Jack Carson in Universal-International's new comedy, "The Groom Wore Spurs," a Fidelity Pictures Production opening Sunday at the Rialto theater, modified her name from Virginia, when a tiny cousin, finding the original tag too big a mouthful began calling her "Gingah."

Miss Rogers was living in Fort Worth, Texas, then — a typical school girl of that day and age when she won a contest featuring the new Charleston.

"I'd planned to become a teacher," Ginger recalls, "but all of that went by the boards when somebody proclaimed me as an 'expert' in the Charleston."

On the strength of her Charleston little, Ginger started a strenuous five-shows-a-day vaudeville grind and eventually got her big break on Broadway.

Her first movie was a Paramount's Astoria studio near New York. In "Young Men of Manhattan," she became identified with the expression, "Ginger me, big boy," and overnight became a national celebrity.

In "The Groom Wore Spurs" Ginger plays the role of a lawyer who tries to make a filmland cowboy celebrity travel the straight and narrow path in keeping with his clean-cut Western screen portrayals.

Now that the Charleston craze is once again sweeping the nation the actress still gets a big thrill out of being asked to demonstrate the famous dance step.

"It's still my favorite dance," she claims.

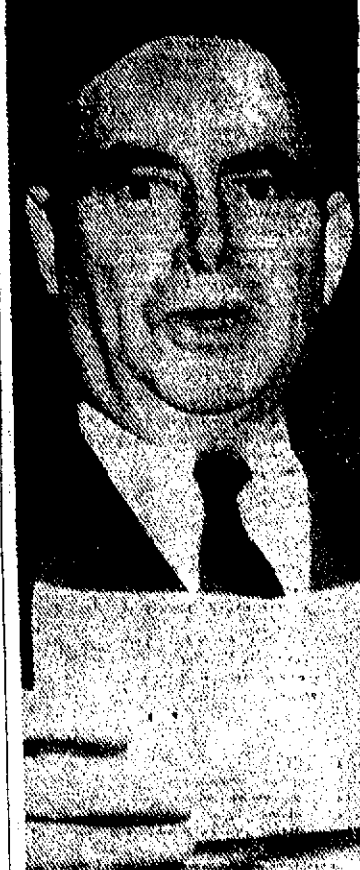

Joan Davis heads the supporting cast of "The Groom Wore Spurs." The new comedy hit was directed by Howard Hawks and produced by Howard Wechs.

any way in which you can give a girl the air and make her like it, but the only honest and manly thing is to do it, and make it final. No man can do a cruder thing to a girl than to keep on showing her attentions when he has no intentions.

MAC ARTHUR INVITED TO ADDRESS CONGRESS

Martin, Lewis 'At War With the Army'

Dann Martin and Jerry Lewis, hailed as the screen's newest and funniest comedy team after their sensational performances in "My Friend Irma" and "My Friend Irma Goes West," are on the loose again in their latest starring vehicle, Paramount's "At War With the Army."

According to advance reports, this comedy, which opens on Sunday at the Saenger theatre, is the maddest and merriest escapade of them all. The screwball comedies are cast as two trouble-making GIs who subject the army to the sternest test it has ever known. Before their hitch is through, there is talk of adding a sixth side to the Pentagon building to deal with their hilarious misadventures.

Lewis, the uninhibited clown whose incredibly flexible face does everything but spell words, plays a battered private with a high sense of duty and a low IQ. Martin, the handsome baritone with the freckled and easy manner is a rank-conscious sergeant who keeps one eye on the girls and the other on Jerry. Together, they are said to rollie through a series of side-

Yoshida Pledges Aid to Ridgway
 (By Staff Writer) — Prime Minister Yoshida said in a statement today the Japanese government has assured the United States of its "determination to continue more than ever cooperation under Lt. Gen. William B. Ridgway, the new supreme commander of the occupation forces in Japan."
 At the same time, Yoshida paid tribute to General MacArthur for his memory of his benevolence and will live forever in the hearts of the Japanese people.

Sunday School LESSON
 Two Tragedies of Greed
 By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
 I lacked space in my last article to complete the story of Abraham and Lot, from my "Rhymed Introduction to the Bible." Before going on to Moses and others, I should like to add the lines concerning Lot:
 Lot: Too many people are like Lot: They're after all that can be got; And not for peace would they force go.
 To grab things for themselves, Oh no! Choose what he thought the most to gain.
 But selfishness defeats itself, And his selfish love of profit, Lot, down in Sodom, found soon.
 That he had gone the way to ruin. The way of ruin has been the end Of some who sought to apprehend For self, the things that rightly should.
 Have all been for the common good. His name was, as you'll see, Achaz. Now war and loot are things that I don't like at all to justify. But warlike times are crude and rough, And victors loot a lot of stuff, Which, as you say, to them belong.

Through you and I may think it wrong. I do not like this tale at all, And yet it grimly points a moral. The Israelites much loot, you see, Had taken from an enemy. This Achaz from the common store Took from the others to grab more. From what belonged to all he stole And in his tent hid in a hole. Some bars of silver and a robe; And when within his tent a probe Revealed this hidden, stole stuff, His punishment was dire enough. Surely would not like to see Upon a man's whole family So terrible a fate decreed.

Overall Food Prices Hold Steady
 By the Associated Press
 Overall food prices at both retail and wholesale level held steady this week.
 Some stores trimmed prices a few pork items two to six cents as a consumer meat buy continued slow generally. Demand for eggs was reported holding well, however, and top grade eggs were boosted one to four cents in many places.
 Price advances appeared to number declines in retail food departments.
 Food prices at the wholesale level steadied after declining three weeks in a row. The Dun Bradstreet wholesale index, representing the total wholesale cost of a pound each of 31 general foodstuffs, was unchanged at $7.40 and compared with $7.35 a year ago and $7.09 just before Korean war began. The year high for this index was $7.31, Feb. 20.
 The agriculture department topped its list of plentiful foods thrifty buying this week with eggs and dry beans.
 Although egg prices edged a little this week in many areas market analysts believe a downward trend can be expected. One reason is that improved breeding chickens, better feed and scientific handling are increasing production per hen.

You In The Church
 The Church In You - Form a combination for good. We should attend church regularly. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the CHURCH. Be Faithful! Be a Churchman.

How frequently we hear it said, "This is just as good as the real thing!" Maybe so in lesser matters, such as particular foods or clothing or brands of aspirin. But in the larger realm of character and morality and religion, it can never be true.
 There is no substitute for integrity of soul. One cannot afford to be almost honest or fairly truthful or half-way dependable. Honesty and genuineness of life have no substitutes. There can be no substitute for genuine friendliness; in fact, a "substitute" is a fraud here... it is hypocrisy and treason to a man's better self. There is no substitute for brotherliness. One is a neighbor or he is not.
 In a man's relation to his God, there is a supreme demand for the genuine and the true. Reverence and gratitude and devotion to a man's Highest Friend must be "real." The man who bows in the presence of the all-loving and all-seeing God must be himself, or he is a caricature like the Pharisee on the street corner... praying to be seen by his fellow men. The respect of men and the favor of God and a man's own sense of integrity... these can have no substitute and no rival.

Free Paper Taken Over by Peron
 Buenos Aires, April 13 — (AP) — Argentine flags waved atop La Prensa building and blazed until dawn today as government forces celebrated their porportion of the great daily newspaper — caustic of President Juan D. Peron's regime.
 The end of the 82-year-old paper as an opposition force came last night when the all-Peronista state approved by acclamation a law forcing the sale of La Prensa the government.
 There had been no doubt as the multi-million dollar paper fate when the chamber of deputies voted 103-16 Wednesday to appropriate it. There are not opposition members in the senate.
 As soon as the bill passed, flags were run up and thousands of electric lights flashed on across the front of the five-story building. La Prensa in the past had served such use of the flags as lights for historic holidays.
 Under the Argentine constitution Peron now can either sign an expropriation bill or let it become law automatically without his signature, at the end of 20 work days.
 Once the sale has been completed Peron has the power to decide whether the government should operate La Prensa or liquidate it.
 The bill authorizes government bond issues to reimburse the family which owns all the stock in La Prensa. The sale price has not been determined.
 La Prensa's editor and publisher heard the news of the expropriation in Uruguay, where he fled last month to avoid a 15-day sentence for contempt of congress. His mother and his uncle are the paper's current owners.

State Military Probe Plan Completed
 Little Rock, April 13 —(AP)— special Arkansas senate committee recovered today to complete investigation of the state civil defense agency and military department. The committee was to report to the senate at noon.
 Hearings yesterday brought to that "Major" Carl C. Martin's temporary director of civil defense, and for a few days Arkansas' assistant adjutant general, held in rank only by appointment governor McMath's personal staff.
 Martin said that through a misunderstanding he had thought he held a reserve commission in the United States marines, from which he is retired as enlisted man.
 He said he became acquainted with Governor McMath both while in the marine corps during World War Two.
 Brig. Gen. John Morris, acting adjutant general, told the committee he believed Martin was qualified for the various jobs he held since he joined the military department as a clerk in 1949 except that of assistant adjutant, for which he received no pay.
 The committee is headed by Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock, a political foe of the administration.
 Fagan sought the investigation after Martin reportedly was critical of legislative refusal to set a permanent civil defense agency and after Lt. Col. Lee Casey, a long-time employee of the military department, was dismissed.
 Casey testified he was fired because of disloyalty to the McMath administration.
 But Morris said that he was fired because of the latter's "disloyalty to the military department, not to the administration."
